

Have you worn your collar button more than a year?

If so, the chances are that it is a "Krementz." You can tell by the absence of that ugly green spot on your neck and by the name "Krementz" stamped on the back of the button.

Krementz are practically the only plated collar buttons that will stand more than a year of continuous service. Those who purchased their Krementz twenty-five years ago for 25c are still receiving faithful service, their collar button looking like new, still backed by the Krementz guarantee.

Similar in quality and equally economical from the viewpoint of service are Krementz loose links $2.50—$3.50; soft collar pins 50c—$1.50; correct evening jewelry sets $7.50—$17.50.

Krementz jewelry naturally is confined to the better shops.

ARBUCKLE DEFENCE'S BIG WITNESS BARRED

Man Was Expected to Show Miss Rappe Had Absolved Comedian.

PROSECUTION CLOSES

Victim's Manager Said She Often Had Torn Clothes Off When Drinking.

DEFENDANT IS JOVIAL

His Wife Weeps at Times as Testimony Against Fatty Is Brought Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—After the prosecution had closed its case to-day in the manslaughter trial of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle and had reserved the right to introduce further testimony to-morrow, Gavin McNab, chief counsel for the defence, made the opening statement for Arbuckle.

"We will prove that Arbuckle was not in the hotel room more than ten minutes with Miss Virginia Rappe," McNab said. Arbuckle is accused of having inflicted fatal injuries on Miss Rappe, a motion picture actress, in his hotel room September 5.

George Glennon, house detective of the hotel, was the first witness called by the defence.

The court ruled out McNab's attempts to have the witness detail a conversation he had with Miss Rappe after her alleged injuries at Arbuckle's hands.

Before the trial the defence announced that Glennon had made a statement to the District Attorney in which he said Miss Rappe had exonerated Arbuckle. Glennon was excused from the stand following the court's ruling.

Kate Brennan, a maid at the hotel, followed Glennon and testified that she dusted off the two doors introduced by a prosecution witness for finger print evidence some time after the finger prints were supposed to have been made by Arbuckle and Miss Rappe. The defence endeavored to prove that in the dusting process she rubbed out the finger prints.

Arbuckle gave a tip of $2.50 to her for cleaning his room and offered to give some whiskey, which she refused, Miss Brennan testified.

Mrs. Lois Harding Lancashire, stopping in the hotel during the party, said she was near the rooms and heard and saw nothing.

A general interest was evidenced in the trial to-day than on any day since it began. Crowds thronged the courtroom and the adjoining corridors, or waited outside to obtain a glimpse of the principals.

Details of the visit of Miss Rappe to San Francisco from Los Angeles were related by Alfred Semmacher, manager for Miss Rappe. Semmacher said he brought Miss Rappe and Mrs. Bonblin Mande Delmont, a friend, to San Francisco in his automobile, September 3, and that they attended a party given by Arbuckle together September 5.

Manager Fihds Girl Dying.

He testified to the finding of Miss Rappe in Arbuckle's room apparently dying after she had been alone for a time with the defendant.

He met Arbuckle the next day, he said, and "we all believed Miss Rappe was intoxicated." Semmacher refused to repeat a word he said was used by Arbuckle in relation to the attempts by guests of the party to relieve Miss Rappe. He wrote the word for a stenographer.

Miss Rappe had torn off her clothing on many occasions after drinking liquor, he testified, but the manner was different from that she used after supposedly having been injured at the party.

Miss Alice Blake, show girl, was the first witness. A statement made by her to the police was introduced. The statement described the party and related that Miss Blake first saw Miss Rappe in a hotel in the film comedian's room and suffering great pain. It continued that Miss Blake and others of the party assisted Miss Rappe.

Another statement given by Miss Blake to the District Attorney was ruled out on the ground that the defence had no opportunity to examine it.

In Good Physical Health.

The next witness, Joseph Ridge, physical culture trainer of Los Angeles, who treated Miss Rappe for being overweight, said she appeared healthy and was stronger than most women he had instructed.

On request of the prosecution the court directed that a microscopic examination be made of the bladder of Miss Rappe. The examination was desired to refute, if possible, contentions of the defence that inflammation of the organ might have caused the rent in it rather than external force.

Joseph Keza, a chambermaid at the Hotel St. Francis, testified that while in a hallway she heard a woman's voice scream, "No, no, no!" while the party was in progress and a man's voice answer, "Shut up!"

A statement made by the witness to the District Attorney was read into the record of the defence. The statement told of the invitation by telephone to Miss Rappe to attend the party. Fred Fleischbach, friend of Arbuckle, did the telephoning, the statement said. Miss Kaza was cleaning the rooms, the statement explained.

Later, the statement continued, Miss Kaza heard a girl crying and much noise and shouting. She listened at the door of Arbuckle's room and heard the girl's cries coming from that room while other members of the party were in it, the statement detailed.

Semmacher was ordered to remain within the jurisdiction of the court, as the defence expected to use him as a witness later.

The last prosecution witness was Prof. E. O. Heinrich, consulting criminologist, of the University of California, who identified finger prints found on two of the hotel doors as those of Miss Rappe and Arbuckle. The doors were brought into court and photographic copies of the fingerprints were produced by Heinrich.

Mr. McNab, in his opening statement, said the room in which Arbuckle was alleged to have locked himself and Miss Rappe at the time of the supposed attack was open at all times. The window shades were up at all times, also, he said, and the interior of the room was therefore in full view.

Arbuckle's attitude bordered on the jovial throughout the day, Mrs. Minnie Durfee Arbuckle, his wife, wept at times. At the close of the prosecution's testimony the court announced that court officers, jury and counsel would visit the hotel rooms to-morrow.

RATION OF STARVING FORMS DINNER MENU

Russian Conditions Portrayed at the Waldorf.

Sitting down to a "Russian Thanksgiving dinner," which consisted of a single bowl of bean soup, a chunk of black bread and a cup of cold and sugarless tea, 160 persons interested in the feeding of the starving millions in Russia, listened last night to graphic descriptions of conditions in that country. The "dinner" was held on the roof of the Waldorf-Astoria and was set on plain gray board tables. It was held under the auspices of The American Friends Society, the Quaker organization which has been engaged in feeding the starving of Europe since the outbreak of the recent world war in 1914.

Word pictures accompanied by motion picture scenes of Russia showed the starving people there in their frantic efforts to get away from the stricken Volga district, where every living thing is dying. Dr. Vernon Kellogg, who recently returned from Russia, told of the conditions which prevailed there. He told of the thousands of children, deserted by starving parents, who are dying on the streets of the cities and towns. Thousands of refugees crowd the railway stations and through the banks of the Volga River in the hope that they may be able to crowd aboard a train or boat and thus escape from the region.

The Hoover Relief Commission, Dr. Kellogg said, has been able to increase its feeding of children from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 and has enough to guarantee that number of children at least one daily meal until the next harvest.

Paul D. Cravath presided. The dinner was attended by about a hundred persons who had paid $10 as their contribution for a "Russian Thanksgiving Dinner."
